“ I don't have many memories of Jimmy, just the memories I've heard from my mom and aunt, but I do cherish this particular memory. We travelled to Fort Payne for a small family reunion in 2016. My son was 3, almost 4, at the time. He ran and played at Jimmy's house all day. At some point, he came across an old wrench and became completely attached to it. He even fell asleep on their couch with the wrench still in hand. When it was time to leave we tried to return the wrench but Jimmy allowed Burton to keep it. We still have that wrench and I'll never forget how happy it made my little boy. A small kindness that meant everything to a three-year-old.
