“ At the Walker family Christmas in Camden, AL, we would all gather for Christmas supper (as Grandmama would say). Most of us cousins had Christmas morning with our non-Walker families, but most of our families eventually got down to Camden. To make this story short and sweet, most of the adults were down in the black trailer talking and visiting while the cousins, and our younger aunts Cindy and Rita were up in the green trailer watching some sort of TV or VCR video. I remember vividly how Aunt Peggy was usually up in the green trailer with us cousins watching SNL or some other video laughing and enjoying all of us being together as a family. Aunt Peggy was so much a kid at heart, and I believe she had more fun hanging out with us cousins than the "older" family. She would laugh as loud as any of us "kids", and she brought a special meaning to our Walker Family Christmases. She will be forever missed!
